

Aeronautical Project Manager

As an international group and leader on its market, ALLEN is involved in major projects in the aeronautical field. ALLEN is a corporation of 26 000 employees around the world, including 88% of engineers. The global turnover for 2016 is 1.54 Billion euros.

In the frame of our development in Toulouse, ALLEN is Hiring:

ALLEN currently offers opportunities to high potential engineers to join their teams in order to answer the continuous demand of customers and tackle exciting challenges.

As part of our development in the aeronautics field, we are currently looking for project manager with a strong experience in aeronautics.

You will be in charge of the following tasks:

- Managing the projects planning
- Redaction of weekly and monthly reporting
- Follow-up of the KPI and creation of follow-up tool
- Coordination and operational support
- Organisation and leading of the projects meetings

You are qualified to MEng with an engineering experience in the aerospace industry with all level of experience. During your previous experiences, you have developed skills in project management applied to aeronautics. You want to work for our customers in Toulouse, the capital city of aerospace in Europe.

Moreover, you must be autonomous and rigorous. You have a good level in French and English (B2 level is a minimum)

The career development of our engineer is the central point of our management and allows you to evolved fast on management and technical responsibilities linked to your career plan.

Do not hesitate to send me your resume: vincent.castanet@alten.com with aurelien.moyret2@alten.com in copy.